

Privacy Policy

As part of the site privacy policy, no personal information will be collected about you (unless specified in this policy) when you visit our web site unless you choose to provide that information. We comply with four core privacy principles: notice, choice, access, and security.

Here is how we handle information about your visit to our Web site:

Information Collected and Stored Automatically:

If all you do during your visit is browse through the Web site, read pages, or download information, the only information the site will gather and store about your visit is the following information: The Internet domain (for example, "aol.com" or "xcompany.com") from which you access the Internet; The IP address (an IP address is a number that is automatically assigned to your computer whenever you are surfing the Web) from which you access the Web site; The type of browser and operating system and connection speed used to access the site; The date and time you access the site; The pages you visit; and if you linked to this site web site from another web site, the address of that web site. This information is used for site management purposes -- to learn about the areas of the site that are of the most and least interest, the number of visitors to the site, and the types of technology visitors use.

Links to Other Sites:

This site contains links, some of which are to other sites. Once you link to another site, you are subject to the privacy policy of the new site. We are not responsible for any content on or gathered for the sites we chose to link to via our web site. It is always good practice to delete the cookies on your computer each day. We also suggest that you use spyware blocking program and that you do not open email or attachments from organizations that you do not know.

If you Send Personal Information:

If you choose to provide the this site with personal information -- such as if you send us an e-mail or you fill out a form with your personal information and submit it through this Web site -- we collect and store your e-mail address and the content of your communication in order to consider and, as appropriate, reply to your communication.

Additionally, federal law may require that certain unlawful communications be forwarded to appropriate law enforcement agencies. We also may wish to save certain information that you provide us for future reference, in order to contact you about issues or activities we believe match your interests. If you "opt-in" via our contact forms, we assume you would not mind if we save your information and in order to contact you later.

Information on Children:

We do not ask children 13 and under for any identifying information. We suggest that you supervise your children's online activities.